What is HackLondon? (a brief summary)

KCL Tech, UCL TechSoc and UCLe, three of the UK's award-winning and fastest-growing societies, are organising HackLondon: a 24 hour hackathon taking place on the weekend starting the 28th of February.

HackLondon will be free to attend, and is only aimed at students & recent graduates.

There will be over 200 hackers and more than 250 students present overall from universities across the UK.

We've partnered with Major League Hacking (MLH), the official student hacker league, and we are their largest confirmed event this season in Europe.

You can find out more on our website: hacklondon.org.

Why should you sponsor?

Hackathons are excellent way to promote your products, services and APIs to a technologically able and enthusiastic audience.

Our social media and email reach includes more than 15,000 hackers and tech enthusiasts.

In addition to that, our universities (King's College London & University College London) will be promoting this event to approximately 50,000 students.

Though not 100% confirmed, press coverage of the event is highly likely. Our hackathon last year, HackKings, was covered by the BBC.
